

Amica at London

amica.ca

Join an Active, Lively Community.
Make the Most of Your Retirement!

Fresh Meal Delivery

chefsplate.com/Home-Meal-Delivery

Fresh Ingredients Delivered Home.
Get 50% Off Your First Order Now!

What's the #1 hotel in London?

Book Now

TripAdvisor
Hotels from $28.00

ENTERTAINMENT MUSIC

Magisterra Soloists promoting inspiration through music

By Louis Pin, Postmedia Network
Wednesday, January 13, 2016 2:03:00 EST PM

(magisterra.com)

World-class violinist Annette-Barbara Vogel's dream has been to bring music to students, to inspire them to foray into music themselves.

She's getting her wish this Friday in Chatham.

The Magisterra Soloists are a group of musicians slated to play two by-donation concerts at St. Andrew's United Church at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.. They'll be playing an upbeat collection of old and new music, designed to engage listeners — especially students.

"We did invite all the schools in the area," said Jordan Clayton, a violinist originally from the Chatham area. "We invited St. Joe's, John McGregor, the Pines, my old high school ... I went to school in Pain Court."

Clayton will play with the group in Chatham, and he's very excited about the music they'll be offering.

"Every piece we've chosen is incredibly high-voltage, very accessible," Clayton said. "It's the kind of music that will keep you on the edge of your seat. There's never a dull moment."

The concert isn't a new one; the German Rhapsody in School was a project where high-level musicians would visit schools to promote learning in music. They claim more than 300 musicians participated by attending over 450 schools.

Vogel's project, on the other hand, is just picking up steam now.

"It's totally unique," Clayton said. "All young players, all in their prime, and the music making is very energized ... everyone is fully involved and engaged. And that comes off in the concert you're watching."

For more information on the concert, visit magisterra.com or contact info@magisterra.com

What's the #1 hotel in London
Hotels from $28.00 TripAdvisor
Book Now